From Day to Day

An Excellent Housewife.

She was a most excellent housewife. For all the neighbors declared. Her windows were polished and shining.

Each day was expeditious and cheerful. She was to be seen in the kitchen. We found in that kitchen and in the laundry and cupboard and kitchen. There wasn't a crumb for a mouse.

She was a most excellent housewife. But her children were troubling her. Last time she was in the kitchen. Or wrinkle the snowy white spread. Her husband, a poor, helpless creature. Come regularly home to the house. Where of love or domestic enjoyment. There wasn't a crumb for a mouse.

—Lalla Mitchell.

There were present at the dinner Hon. W. H. Cushing, M.P. for Alton.

FOSTER'S WEATHER FORECAST.

Washington, D.C., July 20.—Last Bulletin gave forecasts of disturbances to cross southeast 25 to August 1, warm wave 27 to 31, cool wave 30 to August 2. Next disturbance will reach Pacific coast about Aug. 2, cross west of Rockies country of cloud 3, great central valleys 4 to 6, eastern states 7. Warm wave will cross west of Rockies about 5, great central valleys 4, eastern states 6. Cool wave will cross west of Rockies about 5, great central valleys 7, eastern states 2.

About the time this disturbance is crossing the continent, temperature will average about a little below normal and drought conditions will prevail in large sections of the corn belt, particularly about lower Missouri and the mid-Mississippi river valleys. Rainfall or lack of it during the passage of this and the following disturbance, will largely determine what the corn crop will be for 1932.

Severe storms may be expected during the next August 3 to 6, and had now do some damage in the northwest spring country.

Immediately following July 27 the temperature are expected to be moderate and not much force to the storm. Weather will not be oppressive except for a few days. A deficiency of rainfall has occurred.

MORE "CORPORATION CONNECTIONS."

The Winnipeg Telegram, the leading Conservative journal in Western Canada, demands that the construction of the Hudson Bay railway be postponed unless or until the route to be traversed by the new line be approved by the Province of Manitoba. The Telegram admits that the construction of the line some time may be desirable, but argues that as an expenditure of Federal money is involved, it should be delayed until the jurisdiction over Fort Churchill is settled for all time.

When was any such distinction drawn between Canadian provinces and territories? And when and by whom was the sovereignty of the Canadian Parliament limited by that stipulation that no enterprise should be undertaken which involved an expenditure of Federal money in a Canadian territory? When were the people of Canadian territories denied the benefits of the pale of citizenship and unworthy of equal opportunities to the people of the provinces? And when was it laid down that any project of Canadian provinces should be disallowed, the benefits of any project when it was found this would necessitate an expenditure of Dominion funds in a district not included in any of the provinces?

Was this doctrine taught by Sir John Macdonald, who spent twenty-five million dollars of Federal money in the construction of the Canadian Pacific railway, one half of which lay in a country not under the jurisdiction of any Federal Government? Was no expenditure of Federal money made in Manitoba before it became a province? Or in the Northwest Territories before they became provinces? Do the friends of the Telegram demand that no Federal money should be expended in the Yukon simply because that district has not yet become a province? Or that the unorganized districts of Canada shall be given up to lawlessness and crime because Federal money must not be expended to maintain the Mounted Police?

The people of the Canadian Territories are Canadian subjects. They contribute to the Dominion revenue and they are entitled to a proportionate share of the public expenditure when such is necessary. By this means and this alone can the newer districts be opened up and the way be paved for their settlement and development into provinces.

But the Hudson Bay railway is destroyed less as a means of opening up and developing the district of Keewatin than as an outlet for the congested traffic of the Western Provinces. In making war on the project therefore the Telegram not only seeks to block the development of a district, but to impose a barrier against the development of the Western Provinces, its own Province of Manitoba included. Rather than have the line constructed through territory outside Manitoba the Telegram would have the line "postponed" apparently for all time.

Who stands to benefit by the postponement of the Hudson Bay railway, or by its construction under Provincial instead of Federal auspices?

The people of Manitoba? They are particularly concerned in the immediate construction of the line, and accordingly in its construction with as little cost as possible to themselves. Clearly their interests are that the road be built at once and that the burden be borne by the Dominion and not by the Province of Manitoba.

The interests of the people of Alberta and Saskatchewan are analogous if not identical. They, too, want the road completed as soon as practicable, they do not desire Manitoba to shoulder the whole burden and they have no intention of imposing their part of the burden on their own Provinces.

If the road were constructed within the Province of Manitoba it would presumably be constructed under the same arrangement as other Canadian Northern railways in that Province are built—with bonds guaranteed by the Province—while the same assistance might be given by the Federal Government. The point at issue therefore is whether or not the Province of Manitoba should be forced to enforce the bonds of the railway to the Bay; and sooner than have the Province escape, the Telegram would have the enterprise postponed forever. It does not appear difficult under these circumstances to locate the parties for whose interests the Telegram speaks.

THE FACTS OF THE CASE.

Prayers and protests issued from some opposition journals against the tax imposed on financial concerns at the last session of the Provincial Parliament. This tax we are told is in reality paid by the patrons of these institutions, the banks and loan companies simply because of the interest to meet the additional burden and leave their profits unimpaired. They are assured in their undoubted right and privilege, and the monetary concerns would be profitably wanting in business acumen if they did not seize the opportunity to shift the burden on to the shoulders of those who borrow money from them.

On the other hand, however, is the fact that the rate of discount in Alberta today is precisely the same as before the Act was passed. No attempt has been made to increase the discount rate so as to meet the added burden and leave the margin of profit unaffected. And no such attempt is likely to be made. The rate of interest charged in this Province is not determined by the free and untrammelled will of the money-lenders. The laws of the country fix limitations beyond which the rate cannot be raised. But while the demand for money is as brisk as it has been for years the rate is not likely to fall far under the legal standard. Tax or no tax the borrowers of money will be required to pay all the law allows; but tax or no tax they cannot be made to pay more than this.

A VALUABLE BLUE BOOK.

A blue book, perhaps not less than ordinarily interesting to the general reader, but of great interest and value to the student of Canadian history, has been issued by the archives branch of the Federal government. The book contains copies of documents relating to the constitutional history of Canada from 1759 to 1791, and is designed as the first of a series covering the whole field down to comparatively recent events. The publication volume is edited with notes by Prof. Adam Shortt, of Queen's University, and A. G. Doughty, Dominion archivist. The series will make available for teachers and students throughout Canada the more important documents in the archives at Ottawa, which else could only be consulted at the cost of time and money.

OPENING A WATERWAY.

It is announced that the Little Slave river connecting Lesser Slave Lake with Athabasca river is to be made navigable for steamers by the construction of wing dams at the shallow places. At present passengers and freight from Athabasca Landing go by steamer to the mouth of the Little Slave where a twenty-mile portage is necessary before proceeding by boat to the lake. When the contemplated improvements are completed steamers will be able to ply from the Landing to the farther end of the lake without interruption. It is expected the work will be completed before the opening of navigation next season, when the traffic will doubtless be very greatly increased, this being the water route to the Peace River settlements.

WENT WRONG.

(Montreal Herald.) There was an election in the County of Hanke, Nova Scotia, on Friday, of which we are told to hear less than was one time fondly hoped. The election followed a vacancy caused by the elevation of Mr. Drysdale, who represented the riding in the legislature, to the bench. Mr. Drysdale's majority in the general election was about fifty. Hanke is a riding in which the parties are of about equal strength, the majority never being large. Into Hanke, therefore, were flung scores of Conservative orators, headed by the brain with all the "scandal" literature evolved by ingenious party managers out of the most treacherous work at Ottawa. The hope was that they would elect their man, that the result and the cause of it would be trumpeted abroad, and that workers and candidates everywhere would take heart. Alas! the Liberal candidate was elected by about two hundred. Vanities of vanities! when will something really good turn up to cheer the tired workers?

FIRE INSURANCE.

(Regina Standard.) The comparative immunity from damage by fire enjoyed by the farmers of the prairie provinces during the past three years has also caused them to forget that source of damage to growing crops. The present weather with its alternating sunshine and shower makes the hull creak a daily possibility. A few little precautions are to be found in almost every rain shower. On Wednesday evening of this week severe damage was done by a hail storm in the Cottonwood district. The farmer has lost his entire crop of 30 acres. The grain was beautifully headed out and everything pointed to a promising harvest. In the space of twenty minutes it was reduced to broken fragments of pulp straw, others suffered on partial loss by a strip. The warning is timely and farmers generally should profit by it.

LIVES TO READ OBITUARY.

And Philanthropist Whose Death Was Announced Still Alive.

Warren, Ind., July 30.—Eliza Hays, a philanthropist, aged 90 years, whose death was announced last Sunday from a local paper, is still alive. At her home yesterday she walked to a window, felt and cut a severe gash in her head, but last night was said to be much alive in spite of the ordinary printed on Monday and the fall on Wednesday morning. An undertaker went to enquire the body and found that Mr. Hays was alive, but in a comatose condition. The monogrammer revised some and today was able to leave his bed unaided.

In 1867 Mr. Hays gave all his property, amounting to $100,000, to the Methodist Episcopal Foreign Missionary Society for use in the education of preachers at the Nicholas Law Institute at Mercedes, Argentina, South America. After this gift he received an annual salary from the church. In 1861 he turned over the Foreign Missionary Society of the Methodist Church $25,000 which he had saved out of this annuity. Mr. Hays was a frugal man and he deprived himself of the necessities of life in order to save money for the church.

Verdict of Involuntary Slavery.—Victoria, B.C., July 30.—A verdict was returned by the jury in the case of Mrs. Mary, who was charged with the involuntary slavery of her son, who was a convict, and who was charged with the involuntary slavery of her son, who was a convict, and who was charged with the involuntary slavery of her son, who was a convict.

A warrant was issued by the prosecuting counsel Holden and a demand will be made on the officers at the Brady for the man, which will be returned.

Holden says he will exhaust every resource to get him if he has to take the case to the Supreme Court. He claims that the court decision which says civil authorities cannot try citizens do not apply to this case.

BUILDING THREE DEFENDERS.

Americans Confident Lipton Intends Trying for America Cup.

New York, July 30.—How probable is a "shot" in the America Cup next year may be judged from the fact that already plans are under way to build three yachts for the defense of the trophy. The yachts are to be designed by the three foremost naval architects in America. They will be from the hands of Mr. Herreshoff of Henry J. Glaser and of William Gardner. The three yachts will compete in trial races according to present ideas and the best of the three selected to race for the cup.

While it is true that there have been no negotiations as yet with respect to a challenge, it has been a well understood fact since Sir Thomas Lipton left this country last winter that he would challenge at the end of the present racing season.

ATTACKED BY STARVED MAMMALS.

Victims Dogs Lacerate Flesh of Child.—

Saved by Her Presence of Mind.—Nome, Alaska, July 29.—Clarissa Boyd, a four-year-old girl, escaped losing her life by an attack from a pack of savage and half-starved mammoths, only the great presence of mind of the child saved her.
